RE: Complaint against Keith Babb

Dear Mr. McDaniel,

After carefully reviewing the Consignment Control sheet Mr. Babb sent in to the Auctioneers Licensing Board in his response dated December 21, 2010, I have noticed that Mr. Babb's signature is on it in the "Received by" section under my name. It has been my long-time understanding that the presence of two signatures is required to establish a contract. Enclosed you will find a copy of the Consignment Control sheet I was given when I brought the truck to the auction prior to the day of the sale, which only has ONE signature. I believed this document to only be a receipt of merchandise dropped off and not a true contract. Mr. Babb, evidently signed the Consignment Control sheet in an effort to deceive the board, since Mr. Babb didn't actually receive the merchandise to begin with; his wife did.

Additionally, I would like to point out that Mr. Babb's statement that I came in to his office after the sale and told his wife that the title would be in that day and that I would be back on Monday with the title to pick up the check doesn't stand to reason since November 11, 2010 was Veteran's Day and the mail doesn't run on holidays. I did write on the registration a few days prior to the sale that I was expecting it in on the eleventh but at the time, hadn't realized that the eleventh was going to be a national holiday. What I actually told Mrs. Babb after I caught my breath was that I did not want to sale the truck for that price and that the only reason I said yes was to get the people away from me so that I could catch my breath.

Please note that the enclosed Consignment Control sheet is not signed by Mr. Babb or anyone employed at his facility. Also, I have included a calendar of the month of November that demonstrates the day of the sale was on Veteran's Day.

Yours Truly,

Frank D. Henson, Sr.
