RE: Caitlan Wolf v. Kunstler Newton Services, LLC

Dear Ms. Dow:

After our conversation of last week, I spoke with Jerry Pepper about this matter. Mr. Pepper told me again that his intention was only to have us store the trailer in question and sell it at private sale for the best price we could secure.

As I told you Kunstler Newton Services, LLC only performs real estate, government, bankruptcy and estate auctions. We have not done any kind of consignment auction in many years and have no intention of doing any in the future.

I'm sure whatever Mr. Pepper filed regarding an auction was inadvertent. Obviously we were unaware that he had filed anything except the order to store and sell privately or we would have refused to be involved in the process at all.

Please convey our apologies to the Auction board for them having to be involved in this sordid matter. We regret having accepted a standard storage assignment where our reputation has been questioned by individuals whose absence of veracity is shown by the facts of the events that have occurred in the Succession proceeding. We wish to resolve any further questions you have, and we have also advised Mr. Pepper that we will assert our rights for our unpaid storage and hauling fees. If you need anything further, or if you believe that our lawyer should be involved please let me know.

Thank you very much.

Jak Kunstler
